

Why Woolman's discernment is not WWJD

The relation between inward and outward: the inward motion of God's love necessarily leads to the outward action of justice (though the action will vary from person to person). This is not the emphasis of WWJD, in which action is motivated by measuring myself against an outward standard:

Action by leading:

* = my understanding of Scripture, which comes not from outside source, but from instruction of Spirit within.